Hot Topics 2013 is next week!

The first annual Hot Topics in Simulation Education Symposium will be held at Bellevue Hospital and NYSIM on October 11th. The symposium planning committee co-chairs, and presenters are putting on the finishing touches. Participants from across the nation have registered. There are less than 30 seats left!

NYSIM Grand Rounds—October 14th, 5:30

Join Dr. Susan Pivko PT, Cert MDT, Adv. CIECP, FDM, the Assistant Professor and Director of Clinical Education Graduate Center and Hunter College Doctor of Physical Therapy Department for her presentation entitled Professional Clinical Readiness: Terror or Triumph: The Doctor of Physical Therapy SIM LAB experience for Novice Student Practitioners. We invite you to participate and discuss opportunities to introduce simulation education to the DPT program and consider new creative approaches to faculty development.

NYU College of Nursing, School of Medicine and College of Dentistry collaborate on Oral Systemic Health Program

NYSIM hosted the first Teaching Oral Systemic Health (TOSH) event on September 12th. This Inter-Professional Education program involved 160 medical students from NYU, 80 nurse practitioner students from NYU College of Nursing, and 80 dental students from the NYU College of Dentistry. Teams of students examined standardized patients, focusing on the oral, cardiovascular and chest physical findings. Breakout sessions of eight students focused on the importance of oral health to general health, and included a discussion of community resources to address the associated issues. The OSCEs and the breakout sessions were proctored by faculty from the three schools.

By all measures the TOSH event was a huge success for both the students and the faculty. For many students it was their first encounter with students and/or faculty from the other disciplines.

The program was supported by an HRSA grant obtained by the College of Nursing with Dr. Judith Haber being the PI. The event will be hosted by NYSIM again next year. Hopefully, at the suggestion of organizers and learners, this will lead to more IPE programs and in time will include participants from other health care disciplines as well.

NEW* Online Journal Reading Group:

Monthly articles are posted and discussed by faculty. Past topics include simulation nomenclature and curriculum design. Email Demian.Szylid@nyumc.org if you would like to join or suggest an article or topic.

Abstracts Accepted

IMSH 2014 The International Meeting on Simulation in Healthcare will be held in San Francisco, CA on January 25th-29th, 2014. Brad Green, the current NYU/NYSIM Fellow in Simulation and Education, submitted a proposal for a Podium Presentation entitled "Is This Mic On? Using humor in simulation education" which was selected. Ambrose Wong's proposal titled "Initiating and Assessing a Novel Simulation-Based Team Training Curriculum in the Emergency Department" was also accepted. Demian Szylid and Grace Ng, will be presenting various workshops on simulation and debriefing alongside colleagues from Harvard, Drexel, Rutgers, Georgetown, Hospital Virtual Valdecilla (Spain), INSIMED (Colombia), and National Center for Perinatology (Mexico).
