

News at NYSIM

Registration is Open for "Simulation as a Teaching Tool" Instructor Course

From June 28th to July 1st, 2016, NYSIM will once again host the premier simulation instructor-training course. Faculty from the Center for Medical Simulation will join NYSIM faculty to offer this internationally revered course here in New York City. Space is limited to 20.

Meet an Assistant Medical Director: Sandy Zabar, MD

We are pleased to announce Dr. Sondra Zabar's appointment as an Assistant Director at NYSIM and her role leading our Standardized Patient (SP) Program. She will focus on bringing new SP programs from CUNY and NYULMC to NYSIM and maintaining our high quality standardized patient educational and assessment activities.

Dr. Zabar is the Director of the Primary Care Internal Medicine Residency Training Program at the NYU School of Medicine. She is the Director of the Program for Medical Education Innovations and Research (PrMEIR), established in 2006 with the mission of advancing medical education scholarship at NYU and instituting best practices for patient-centered, evidence-based medical education through research, faculty development, and an internal grants program. She is a Professor of Medicine at the NYU School of Medicine and a member of the NYU School of Medicine Curriculum Committee, and she directs the NYU School of Medicine Standardized Patient Program.

NYSIM Visiting Fellowship Update

Silvania Klug Pimentel from Curitiba Brazil spent 6 months at NYSIM as a Visiting Fellow. During her time at NYSIM she worked with Demian Szyld and Aku Ude-Welcome (Director, Surgical Skills Lab) on various projects. Along with Mary Ellen Sheldon, she is a co-chair of the April 11th 2nd Annual Symposium for Fellows in Healthcare Simulation. She created and piloted several informed consent simulation sessions for the department of surgery at NYU. Additionally she played an important role in data collection and research with Adina Kalet, (Assistant Director for Research) and is a co-author on a recently accepted manuscript on the culture of safety, an effort that Grace Ng led this fall.

Congratulations Silvania!

Silvania sent us the following communication this month:

"Dear NYSIM friends, I'm back home in a much warmer weather. Its good being back but I'm missing you all already. You made my time at the NYSIM wonderful as I learned so much and had a great time doing so. Upon my return I will start work at a sim center in Brazil. My hope is that I can count on you all for your expertise, advice and maybe to coordinate a visit to my center."

She can be contact by email at: silvaniaklug@gmail.com

NYSIM Coordinator's Corner

The gallery show "Bedside Manner" by photographer Corinne Botz, illuminates simulation from both the SP and learner perspectives, ran from January 1 through February 6 at Benrubi Gallery. The show includes photos of Standardized Patients, as well as a short film that gives a glimpse into both real and simulated worlds and has artistic and educational impact. It also includes a photo of Ginny Drda, Program Coordinator at NYSIM, who is honored to be included in the exhibit.
